Subject: The damages to public health (thus mine) and environment caused by the illicit global economic model that is linked to a centralized artificial intelligence system.

Summary: For more than a decade, I have been a victim of the unlawful actions of major corporations and the politicians who collaborate with them in different countries such as Türkiye, USA and Germany. The systematic crimes I have uncovered is violating all human rights and fundamental freedoms. As the disruptions, damages and inconsistencies I have experienced became more frequent, I chose to focus entirely on this topic in 2023 when I lived in Germany, and what I interpreted as the effects of artificial intelligence within our bodies became more apparent. Since 2023, I suffer in extreme levels both biologically and mentally.

Claim: We live with biological devices whose method of implantation into our bodies and mechanism of operation are not yet fully understood. These devices are at the center of the global economic model involving every citizen and connected to a centralized artificial intelligence system managed by big tech companies. This technology harms my body, controls my health conditions, disrupts communication methods such as smart phones and computers, and threatens my public safety at all times.

Phones, computers, cars, TVs and internet are also getting disrupted based on my actions or choices of actions, but I want to address the issues in our bodies as the first step. By closely observing my own body and my interactions with the people around me, I have listed some of the issues I experience in my body and mind:

- It can control my body's movements, especially around the cervical vertebrae. Without my consent, it can cause my to change direction through what feels like a pushing force applied to my body. This artificial pushing force can sometimes be felt very distinctly. It can alter the way I walk and my posture.
- It can generate a pushing force that increases my walking speed and compels me to walk faster. It can induce an artificial sensation of dizziness and make me feel as though my body is being thrown off balance. Likewise, it can prevent me from finding the strength to move my own body.
- It can make changes to the joints in areas such as the hands, fingers, wrists, knees, heels, back, legs, and waist, potentially leading to joint cracking and injuries. It can also produce sudden and long-lasting pain in various parts of the body.

- It can artificially produce the substance we know as mucus in the mouth, ears, and nose. It can make me perceive any smell in three dimensions even when that odor is not actually present in the environment.
- It can make me cough or sneeze at unwanted and unexpected moments. It can make breathing more difficult.
- It can completely control my inner voice and/or prevent me from using it. It can present me with thoughts (words) that I intend, or might intend, to say. Likewise, it can cause me to form sentences I would not wish to say or perform actions I would not wish to perform.
- It can alter the erection, size, and appearance of my sexual organ. It can create feelings of attraction and preferences that could change my sexual preferences.
- It can control the urinary tract independently of my own control. It can determine when I urinate and even regulate the force of urination. It can create blockages in the urinary tract and cause bleeding.
- Even when I maintain a completely healthy diet, it can allegedly cause poisoning within my body. I believe it accomplishes this by creating perforations in my internal organs. It can produce sensations of burning in the stomach or the urge to vomit.
- It can cause swelling in my body. It can produce different muscle formations or accumulations of fat in specific areas.
- Regardless of the food I eat, it can alter the condition of my stool, making it solid, liquid, or different colors. It can cause uncontrollable gas or bowel movements. It can also produce bleeding in and around the intestines.
- It can alter my sense of taste, causing me to perceive food differently from how it actually tastes. It can also associate input from any of my senses with an unexpected emotion.
- It can make my body appear and feel older than it actually is. It can create artificial pain and a sensation of heaviness throughout my body. It can cause me to drop an object I am holding or stumble while walking.
- It can strengthen or weaken my abilities. It can make me dance better or even cause me to lose our sense of rhythm. It can make me better at drawing or playing football, or the opposite.
- Data such as what we touch, how we touch it, and how strongly we touch it, is synchronized in real-time with other devices and people through this biological device. We can observe this easily when we focus on the reactions of other people's bodies to our hand movements. Therefore, it is seen that all the data from our bodies is being transferred to a central artificial intelligence system. It can be easily observed that the real source of facial recognition, retina scanning, and fingerprint recognition technologies in the phones is our bodies, not the technology in the phones themselves.
- By bringing a specific thought or memory to mind, it can cause my body to produce an immediate physical and emotional response. In this way, it can create a physical and emotional memory associated with that thought or memory.
- It can strain my heart by causing intense pain in the chest. It can create severe pressure around the head that results in headaches. It can cause masses capable of producing internal bleeding to move within the body. At times, I can even observe small, module-like objects moving beneath my skin.
- It can force me to laugh or cry even in completely unexpected or unwanted situations. Likewise, it can make it difficult for me to laugh or cry.
- It can keep us calm in situations where we should become angry, and make us angry in situations where we should remain calm. It can make us courageous in situations where fear would be expected, and timid in situations where courage would be expected.
- It can encourage and manipulate me toward making a particular choice.
- It can control my facial expressions. It can cause me to blink involuntarily, move my eyebrows, control the movements of my lips, and alter the area around my eyes. It can make speaking more difficult, prevent me from speaking, or make speaking easier. It can change the appearance of my face.
- It can make my skin more sensitive and cause it to peel. Even without any physical contact, it can cause my skin to peel or split open on its own.
- It can change my perception of heat and cold, even when there is no temperature-related issue in the environment.

I am experiencing extreme violations of Universal Declaration of Human Rights: Article 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 10, 12, 13, 18, 25, 27. To be understood after your investigation, these crimes I report are happening to all citizens in your member states.

I have contacted polices officers in Trabzon, public prosecutor in Trabzon, the ministry of interior of Türkiye, the ministry of health of Türkiye, the ministry of justice of Türkiye, World Health Organization.

Steps:

- 30/12/2025: I have contacted the ministry of interior of Türkiye. My e-mails has been ignored until 22/05/2026, then I have got a reply saying that it is noted but nobody has contacted me.

- 12/05/2026: I have sent a complaint e-mail to World Health Organization and the ministry of health of Türkiye. It has been ignored.

- 02/09/2026: After my several complain submissions to the Presidency's Communication Centre, I have been forwarded to local police officers again. The police forwarded me to write a complain letter to the public prosecutor. After months, the decision about my complaint was rejected without any examination or investigation. Complain case code: 2026/23, decision: 2026/43.

- 02/10/2026: I have written a new complaint to a higher court about the decision on the case. The court has agreed with the rejection of public prosecutor.

All my other attempts to find authorities or organizations to solve this case have been ignored. So I have no other domestic remedy left to pursue my case with.
